

As fall approaches, we often look ahead to the coming year and evaluate where we are headed. I have increasingly found that my health problems have made it impossible for me to remain an effective real estate agent.

What I can do is direct you to two of my Long and Foster colleagues who have helped me through the last year. They both have years of experience in selling, buying and renting. They have the attention to detail and high level of integrity that I consider essential to a good agent. Their knowledge of the area helps them put buyers in the right house and give sellers the tools to price properties so they will sell. I consider it equally important that they are both the kind of people that are a pleasure to work with. As your real estate needs arise I hope you will take my recommendation and turn to Janice Buckley (571-239-2792) or Candace Rende (703-314-2461). I know you won't be disappointed.

I have been fortunate to call many of you clients, others are longtime friends or family - some fit more than one category. But you are all people I have enjoyed spending time with professionally or socially.

Wishing you the best in the future,
Susan Maher
